The Vice-President, Students Office has selected the Department of Microbiology and Immunology to receive the 2016/17 Alfred Scow Award. This award is granted to an undergraduate program or department that has contributed to student development.